DETAILED ACTION

Abstract

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hayes (U. S. Patent 5,030,132).

Regarding claim 1, Hayes discloses an insulation displacement terminal comprising: a pair opposed insulations displacement groove-forming portions 55 each having an insulation displacement groove for displacing an insulation; an interconnecting portion 42 interconnecting bottom portions of said pair of insulation displacement groove-forming portions; a lead 46 extending from said interconnecting portion; and a pair of plate portions 52 side edges of at which are least one of said insulation at opposite displacement groove-forming portions by insulated wire-holding space therebetween, wherein the terminal formed into an integral construction by sheet metal working, using a single member.

Regarding claim 5, Hayes discloses a bent portion 52 provided at an intermediate portion of said lead, and being resiliently deformable.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hayes in view of Arnett (U. S. Patent 6,612,880).

Regarding claim 6, Hayes discloses the claimed invention except for said terminal is used in an insulation displacement connector containing a circuit board, and said lead is soldered to said circuit board. Arnett discloses the terminal is used in an insulation displacement connector containing a circuit board 204 and the lead 206 is soldered to the circuit board. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Hayes to provide discloses the terminal is used in an insulation displacement connector containing a circuit board and the lead is soldered to the circuit board as taught by Arnett this would enable use for assembly between the device and printed circuit board.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 2-4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

None of the reference discloses abutment portions formed respectively at lower edges of said plate portions so as abut against a housing; and bendable piece portions extending respectively from upper edges of said plate portions. Retaining portions respectively formed on opposite side edges of said pair of insulation displacement groove-forming portions so as be retainingly engaged with said housing.
